*The Social Science and History examination totals 6 credits with 4 credits applying to Social Sciences and 2 credits applying to Arts and Humanities. It covers materials taught in political science, economics, sociology, anthropology, United States history, western civilization and world civilization courses.

**CLEP foreign language exams focus on skills typically achieved through the second full year of college study. If a student receives the score equivalent to 12 college credits, 6 of those credits can be applied to Arts and Humanities as intermediate Foreign Language credits.
