Ask your parents if the specific skills they learned in college still exist in their current careers. Odds are, they will tell you "no." Technology, communication methods and ways of conducting business are constantly evolving, which is why Baker strives to do more than provide you with an aptitude checklist. We'll teach you how to think critically, connect and apply — the very definition of a liberal arts education.

Our professors often say their greatest joy is watching the "lightbulb go on" for students — the exact moment in which young men and women discover their academic passion. Our programs integrate a variety of subjects and provide students with a wide-ranging foundation, which makes the major selection process much easier.

go away ...

At Baker University, we believe the complete college experience involves learning that occurs outside the classroom. Our students report incredible stories of self-discovery and cultural awareness after studying abroad. The most popular destination for our students is Harlaxton College in Grantham, England, although Baker students participate in affordable programs all over the globe. The Monday-Thursday class schedule allows students to travel on long weekends, bringing to life the knowledge they've learned in prior coursework.

"I've played in the national football playoffs and participated in several activities on campus, but without a doubt, the most defining experience I've had in college has been studying abroad. Living in the manor at Harlaxton and exploring Europe with my friends is truly an experience too cool for words." -Phil, business major

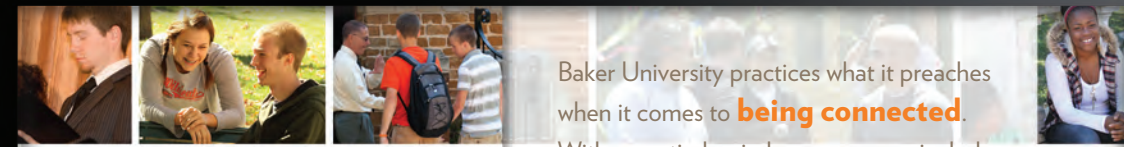

+ be a nurse

Some students enter college feeling destined to help people. At Baker, we often suggest these folks explore our esteemed School of Nursing. In the program, students spend their first two years on the Baldwin City campus and then perform their clinical and advanced work at our partner hospital, Stormont-Vail HealthCare in nearby Topeka, Kan.

"I developed a great foundation of nursing knowledge during my first two years in Baldwin City. The instructors take the time to get to know you and build your skills from the ground up. The transition to the nursing school in Topeka was a breeze." -Kelsey, nursing student

Baker University practices what it preaches when it comes to being connected. With an entirely wireless campus — including computer labs in each of the residence halls — students are constantly linked to the university and the world around it. Our faculty implements current technologies so students are always up to speed.
