Know your Title IX.

Everyone deserves to learn, live, work, and belong here without experiencing sex- or gender-based discrimination or violence.

If you've experienced sexual assault:

- Go to a safe place and connect with someone you trust. If on campus, call Campus Safety or the RA on Duty for help and support. If off campus or in case of emergency, call 911.
- Seek medical attention and preserve evidence. A medical provider can assess and treat physical injuries, sexually transmitted infections, and pregnancy. Free, confidential Sexual Assault Forensic Exams (SAFE/SANE) are available at LMH Health Emergency Room located at 325 Maine Street in Lawrence. Exams are recommended within 72 hours of an assault though evidence collection can sometimes occur up to 120 hours after. If possible, avoid showering, using the restroom, eating, drinking, smoking, or laundering the clothes you were wearing (instead, put them in a paper bag, if you have one). If you've already done these things, an exam can still be helpful.
- Preserve any communication records and take photos of any damage or injury.
- Seek out support. You are not alone. Campus and community resources can help you understand your options and provide support. Baker's Counseling Center can help you connect with a counselor, as well as a confidential advocate.
- Consider making a report through Title IX. You can decide how much you would like to participate in any investigation process. Supportive measures will be implemented through the Title IX Coordinator if wanted and available. Retaliation for filing a report or participating in an investigation is not tolerated at Baker. Under Baker's Amnesty Policy, students who report or witness sexual misconduct won't face conduct charges for related alcohol or drug use.
- Consider filing a criminal report with local authorities. If you are unsure where to go, the Title IX Coordinator can help connect you to local police.

Experiencing relationship violence or stalking?

- Keep a record of incidents (dates, times, screenshots)
- Contact the Title IX Coordinator or Willow Domestic Violence Center for help with safety planning and protection orders

Supportive Measures

Supportive measures are free, individualized services that help you continue your classes, work, and campus life. They're available whether or not you file a formal complaint, and they're available to both the person who reported and the person accused.

Supportive measures can be put into place as soon as the University learns of a concern, before any investigation is complete. The following are examples of supportive measures and are not expected to be all-inclusive:

- Academic accommodations
- Medical and mental health services
- Change in university housing
- Assistance in finding alternative housing
- Assistance in arranging for alternative University employment arrangements and/or changing work schedules
- Mutual No Contact directive; such a directive serves as a notice to the parties that they must not have verbal, electronic, written, or third-party communication with one another
- Safety escorts between classes and campus activities
- Voluntary leave of absence

To request supportive measures, contact the Title IX Coordinator.
